Continuing Education for Everyone?

Please send me all the continuing-education materials offered in the JOURNAL between 1978 and now.

How does it work? Is it possible for pastors, publishing directors, and literature evangelists to obtain credit for these courses?

I was really inspired by Dr. R. W. Coon's continuing education article in the Summer 1988 issue.

Reprinting Articles

In reading the JOURNAL, I have been deeply impressed with the quality of its content. Recently I was appointed as the director of the education and communication departments in our conference, and one of the activities we are fostering is the publication of good material for the benefit of our church members. We do this through our official bulletin.

I would like to know if it is possible to reproduce some of the articles you publish (of course acknowledging the credits).

Enjoyed Back Issues

I am not a teacher but a parent whose children are in SDA schools. Recently my son's teacher gave me some back issues of the JOURNAL. I'm enjoying these immensely. Too bad they are not available to all of our church members, as the Review is.

I was particularly interested in the article concerning home study (December 1987-January 1988), as I would like to take a journalism degree by correspondence or in an external degree program at one of our colleges.

• For information about courses available from Home Study International, ask for their catalog. Write to 6940 Carroll Ave., Takoma Park, MD 20912. The North American Division Board of Higher Education at 6840 Eastern Ave. NW, Washington, DC 20012, can supply information about external and adult-degree programs at SDA colleges.—The Editors.

Cheers for Gender Inclusiveness

This is to let you know how much I have enjoyed reading the February-March 1988 issue of the JOURNAL. All of the articles are excellent and inspirational for teachers. I especially enjoyed the article, "Toward Gender-Inclusiveness in Adventist Education" by Fritz Guy. Well said! As a teacher of mathematics for grades eight to ten, I hope I am helping to give girls a role model other than the traditional ones.

I have especially enjoyed the articles about gender inclusiveness, the first by Fritz Guy and the second on turning history into "herstory" (April-May 1988). Both of them had bibliographies useful for my research on the treatment of women in Adventist periodicals.

I was particularly interested in the suggestion in the second article concerning establishing at least one Adventist college with a department of women's studies. Given the staff we have here and the interest in the subject, I think this would be an ideal place. When I have finished my research, I shall think seriously about suggesting it.
