Teachers seeking digital material on Seventh-day Adventist resources, whether for an entire course, specific class periods, lectures, or devotionals, need easy-to-navigate, informative Websites that not only provide facts and resources, but also novel approaches. The following sites will not only help you bring the past to life in meaningful and compelling ways, but will also assist you in presenting the Adventist faith in a fascinating and multifaceted way to students.

Seventh-day Adventist Office of Archives, Statistics, and Research
http://www.adventistarchives.org/
Adventist Archives (http://www.adventistarchives.org/) features approximately two million pages of free, downloadable materials on everything Adventist, including hundreds of photos, maps, charts, Sabbath school quarterlies, periodicals, and complete books. Documents, available in PDF format, are arranged in a logical and intuitive way.

Adventist Directory(http://www.adventistdirectory.org/) enables you to locate any Adventist church, school, hospital, bookstore, or conference office. Searches can be done by city or state, zip or area code, and radius.

http://www.youtube.com/user/SDAArchives
A YouTube channel featuring the popular “This Week in Adventist History” segment in both its entirety and trimmed clips by subject. Hundreds of short, exciting videos that resurrect the Adventist past.

BY BENJAMIN BAKER
https://twitter.com/GCArchives

Tweets by church archivists provide daily doses of Seventh-day Adventist history and interesting factoids. Perfect for contemporary students active on Twitter.

Ellen G. White Estate, Inc.
Writings of church cofounder Ellen G. White in a searchable database available in numerous languages; answers to frequently asked questions; brief and useful introductions to Ellen White, Adventist pioneers, and their world; a kids’ section; a television program; hundreds of photographs; and an app.

Center for Adventist Research (CAR) at Andrews University
http://www.andrews.edu/library/car/index.html
The Seventh-day Adventist Periodical Index (http://www.andrews.edu/library/car/sdapiindex.html) features a search engine for articles published by Adventist periodicals. (Most of the tens of thousands of articles in this database can be read and downloaded on the previously mentioned Adventist Archives site.)
The Seventh-day Adventist Obituary Index (http://www.andrews.edu/library/car/sdapiobits.html) contains life dates of individuals and obituary sources.
Photograph Database (http://www.andrews.edu/library/car/photosearch.html) of thousands of quality images.

Loma Linda University
LLU’s Digital Archive (http://archives.llu.edu/cdm/) includes every issue of the only periodical solely devoted to Adventist history, Adventist Heritage, as well as hundreds of photographs and interesting artifacts from yesteryear (http://archives.llu.edu/cdm/landingpage/collection/advhert).

Major Adventist Journals
The Websites for most of these journals include archives with a searchable database for ease in locating articles and authors.

Nelson Memorial Library, Pacific Union College
http://library.puc.edu/adventist/sda_resources.shtml
Primarily directs to other sites, although Gary Shearer’s bibliographies will be an extremely helpful resource for those searching for books, articles, and dissertations on a particular area of Adventist history and general history (http://library.puc.edu/heritage/bib-index.shtml). These written works can orient you quickly, as well as make you aware of what is available in the area.

Oakwood University
http://www.oakwood.edu/goldmine Dozens of documents on Seventh-day Adventist history, with an emphasis on the black experience. Also features many useful pedagogical aids such as self-help manuals; collections of short biographies; leadership, health, and devotional materials; and uplifting music.

Adventist Heritage Ministry
http://www.adventistheritage.org/
Photographs of original Adventist buildings and locales, as well as a well-equipped store with Adventist history resources. Visitors to the site can schedule visits and tours to these historic spots, as well as to Adventist-owned sites, including the Adventist Historic Village in Battle Creek, Michigan.

Newbold College/British Union Conference Historical Archive
http://www.adventisthistory.org.uk/documents.php
A rich resource on Adventism in the United Kingdom and Ireland, replete with photographs, complete books and journals, and useful links to news stories, talks, interviews, and dozens of similar Adventist sites.

Center for Ethnic Adventist History Studies
http://blacksdahistory.org/
Information and materials on black Seventh-day Adventism, including 250 Web pages of resources, downloadable documents and books, videos, timelines, statistics, rare photographs, and an extensive obituary section. Monthly features such as quotes, book of the month, video of the month, and essays. A complementary YouTube channel is also available (http://www.youtube.com/user/Blacksdahistory).

Adventist Pioneer Library
http://www.aplib.org/
Short but informative videos (http://www.aplib.org/?page_id=618) and concise written biographies (http://www.aplib.org/?page_id=12) on Millerite and Adventist pioneers.

Seventh-day Adventist Church Official Site
http://news.adventist.org/
In addition to breaking news, includes archives of news broadcasts, photos, stories, and spotlights on the Adventist past, including the weekly “This Week in Adventist History” segment on the ANN video site.

Information can now be retrieved not only from books, but also laptops, PCs, Macs, apps, mp3s, mp4s, CDs, podcasts, blogs, and tweets. These resources are accessible wherever there is a computer (or a Smart phone or iPad) and an Internet connection. Access the vast treasure trove of rich knowledge available to be reinvigorated and to enrich your teaching.

Benjamin Baker, Ph.D., is an Assistant Archivist at the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists in Silver Spring, Maryland.