

What I Have Learned From The Deep Water (Grover Wilcox)

- 1. Softly, deeply give Him all your heart. In innocence confide in Him like a little child. Be His boy/girl and let Him love you. He is your Daddy.
- 2. Stay completely by His side walking and talking to Him every moment. Go to heaven often to see Him in His throne room and hug Him. Your purpose is to give Him joy.
- 3. Let Him crush you in his everlasting arms so that all of self is squeezed out and all of Jesus comes in. Let the pain and the remolding take place as you look on with trusting eyes into His face.
- 4. Sit at His side in deep silence, far away from the world, asking nothing of Him. There He teaches you the song of His love in the darkness that you may sing it in the light.
- 5. Trust all to Him so that when the deep dark water threatens to wash over your head you look into His expectant face and say, "It's ok, it's ok Father, You are in charge." Then smile and let your soul glow.
- 6. Know that you are His treasure, His trophy, His joy, and that you stand by His side when multitudes turn away.
- 7. Let Him hold you to His chest so closely that you can hear His heart beat. Be one with your Father and He shall "see to it." He will direct you in all your ways.
- 8. Seek only His approval, His will, His glory and His honor. Let the world's hollowness and things rush on by.
- 9. Reach out in His love, His fearless deep soul love and lift others to Him. Give them openly what He gives you – understanding, caring and love.
- 10. Ask of your Father that you may give to others. Always go in His name, His words burning in your heart and coming through your lips.
- 11. Life's greatest joy comes from daily seeking your Father's agenda – serving others and telling them who He is.
- 12. Never compare yourself with others. You are God's child and He has "tailor made" the experience you need to take you from here to heaven.
